TROUBLE SPREADING RAPIDLY.

RADIATING IN EVERY DIRECTION.

An Immense Army Said to be Gathering to Drive the Russians out of Manchura—Chinese Officials are Playing Double in Holding News and Giving out False Reports—Cabinet to Informally Discuss the Situation Tonight.

By Wire to the Telegram.

London, July 18—The troubles in the far East are spreading in unparalleled dimensions, and according to the latest advices another war has started. The Boxer revolt has spread to the North, South, and West in China and has reached Corea. A St. Petersburg dispatch says that it is reported from Chefoo that Prince Tuan has mobilized 950,000 men and ordered the Northern force to expel all foreigners from the Amoor district of Siberia, and another force will operate against Mukden. There is certainly a rising in the North against Russia, it being officially announced in St. Petersburg that after bombarding Blagonestochensk, they had captured the town. They have destroyed the roads and other means of communication.

Kwang Chang, the Chinese minister at Petersburg, visited the foreign office and informed the government that the events transpiring in Manchuria were not in accord with the views of the Pekin government. He promised to make serious representations to Pekin by way of Hong Kong, emphasizing the serious consequences that will follow if hostilities in Manchuria do not cease.

The latest Chinese assurances of the safety of the European legations at Pekin are not credited here. On the contrary, it is believed that they have been dictated by a desire to save the native city of Tien-Tsin. A correspondent at Shanghai says it is hardly doubted that Shen, the director of telegraphs, is withholding information in his possession. The correspondent adds that the news of the massacre as telegraphed to the United States may be taken as correct.

An Antwerp dispatch says that Belgium contemplates hiring two South American warships for service in Chinese waters, and will claim a million pounds indemnity for killing Belgian subjects and the destruction of property. The dispatch says that public opinion in Antwerp charges the missionaries with causing the present trouble in China.

A Shanghai dispatch of Monday says that for the last fortnight a Chinese steamboat has been towing cargo boats between Woosung and the Shanghai arsenal, presumably with arms and ammunition to strengthen the defenses of the Woosung forts. The foreign authorities requested the Chinese officers to discontinue the sailing of this vessel, but she passed Sunday as usual.

TO DISCUSS SITUATION TONIGHT.

Washington, July 18.—At a Cabinet dinner which the President will attend tonight there will be an informal discussion of Chinese affairs. This method is taken to divert from the proceedings all official aspects.

The State department this morning received a dispatch from consul Fowler at Chefoo, with reference to the latest Chinese report that the foreign ministers were safe. Fowler says that the governor of Shantung wired that his courier left Pekin July 9, and that the legations were still holding out them.

The war department today bulletined that the latest official report of the casualities at Tien Tsin as 18 killed, 79 wounded and 2 missing.

MR. McCULLOCH PROTESTS.

Says it Was Unfair to Put His Name to a Statement That the Dispensary is a Financial Failure.

To the Editor of the Telegram:

I wish to protest against the unfairness of putting my name to the statement that the dispensary in Greensboro is a financial failure. I have never said so.

FOR THE SCHOOL FUND.

Citizens of Hickory Will Forfeit $1,000 if the Amendment Disfranchises a White Man.

Special Correspondence of the Telegram.

Charlotte, July 18—News reaches here from Hickory that a bond of one thousand dollars has been issued and signed by twelve leading citizens of Hickory, N. C, to forfeit to the public school fund if the proposed constitutional amendment disfranchises any American-born white citizen from casting his vote.

Tonight at 9 o'clock in Westminister Presbyterian church Mr. C. C. Walker and Miss Gussie Cornelius will be married.

Rev. Father Francis has left for the North to spend his vacation.

Mahler Bros, of Raleigh, have written S. B. Alexander, Jr., President of the State Baseball Association, offering to furnish a pennant to the Association in the shape of a vase. Mr. Alexander has accepted the offer, suggesting that the trophy be known as the "Mahler Cup."

On July 3 a Charlotte lady started off on her summer vacation, but on reaching the depot another lady had, by mistake, carried off her trunk. Since that time the railroad has sent out messages galore and the trunk has at last been found, after being lost two weeks. It is needless to say the lady in question did not get her vacation.

REFUSED TO DIVIDE TIME.

A Republican Who Was Afraid to Meet a Democrat in Joint Debate.

One J. M. Weatherly, who, if reports be correct, has been almost everything under the sun—Sunday-school worker, temperance lecturer and an ardent Democrat, but who is now a Republican and an infidel, made a speech at Union Hill school house, near Jamestown, last night. According to an arragement between some of the Democrats and Republicans of the community, Mr. A. B. Kimball went up to speak for the Democratic cause.

Seeing what was before him, and remembering his past record, Mr. Weatherly refused to divide time, unless Mr. Kimball would speak first and without the privilege of a reply. Mr. Kimball and the Democrats present refused to agree to such an arrangement, as a matter of course. Weatherly spoke at considerable length, indulging in general abuse and even disgusting some of his Republican hearers.

Only Three Days More.

There are only three more days in which persons can register for the election in August. The books close at sunset Saturday. It was ascertained today that there are fully 200 Democrats in the city of Greensboro who have so far failed to register Many people lose sight of the fact that there is an entirely new registration this year, and this negligence will cause some to lose their votes.

Enjoyed Themselves.

Those who went on the High Point excursion to Danville yesterday report a most pleasant and enjoyable time. A committee of citizens met the excursionists at the depot and did all in their power to add to the enjoyment of their guests. The Register says it was the best behaved and most orderly large crowd that has ever visited Danville. Of course. That's the kind of people that live in High Point.

A New Edition of Smith's Grammar.

A new revised and enlarged edition of Smith's Old English Grammar has just been issued by C. Alphonso Smith, A. M., Ph. D., of the Louisiana State University, who is at present visiting relatives in Greensboro. It is a brief and simplified text book in Old English, and is highly commended by prominent educators in America and Europe. The book is used in a number of the leading institutions in this country.

A Great Time in McLeansville.

The candidates had a great time at McLeansville yesterday. A large number of Greensboro people, principally Democrats, went down and witnessed the sparring between the Democratic and Republican standard-bearers. The latter are beginning to wear a worn and haggard look, an acknowledgment of the hard road they have to travel.

GENERAL RANSOM IN WINSTON.

A STRONG AND PATRIOTIC SPEECH.

Thousands Hear Him and Applaud His Utterances—A Great Gathering of the White People of Forsyth County to Condemn the Conspiracy of Federal Officers and Their Usurpation of Authority.

Yesterday was a great day for the Democracy of Winston-Salem and Forsyth county. It will be long remembered by the thousands of patriotic men and women, lovers of independent self-government, who came together to express their condemnation of certain petty Federal officers who have recently attempted to usurp authority belonging to the State and throttle the will of a free and sovereign people. The sturdy manhood and the noble womanhood of Forsyth were there to add emphasis to the assertion that outside interference with local matters will not be tolerated, and to say that the disgraceful and pusillanimous conduct of certain individuals must stop—at once and for all time.

The principal event of the day was an address by Gen. Matt. W. Ransom, who, for 24 years, represented his beloved State with unsurpassed ability in the highest branch of the legislative department of our American government. He is of the noblest and most patriotic type of North Carolina citizenship, and although he carries the weight of 76 years, his inspiring speech showed that his mind was active and firm as of yore and that his heart still beat in tender love and sympathy for his people. His utterances were eloquent and dispassionate and sank deep into the hearts of his hearers.

An immense crowd, one of the largest that ever assembled in the Twin City, attended and participated in the meeting. At 2:30 o'clock p. m. the procession moved from the court house in Winston to the Salem Female Academy, where the speaking took place. The procession was composed of the marshals and several hundred other men on horseback, all carrying red penants, and a multitude of men and women in buggies and carriages, followed by a great throng of people on foot.

Arriving at the destination, the vast assemblage was called to order by Mr. Andrew Joyner, chairman of the Democratic County Executive Committee, who asked Hon. Cyrus B. Watson to preside over the meeting.

Mr. Watson welcomed the people in a short and timely speech and told why they had been called together—to express their sentiments at the recent action of Federal usurpers who had dared to attempt to interfere with local self-government.

Mr. A. H. Eller introduced resolutions condemning in strong terms the recent conspiracy of Mr. A. E. Holton, chairman of the Republican State Executive Committee and United States District Attorney, and others to interfere with the rights of the people and to intimidate election registrars by the arrest and prosecution of Messrs. John T. Thompson and Hunter Wall upon the oaths of ignorant and irresponsible negroes. Their action was declared to be an outrage on the rights of the people and a crime against the State.

On motion of Mr. O. B. Eaton, mayor of Winston, the resolutions were adopted by a rising vote, amidst the greatest enthusiasm.

The crowd went wild with applause when the chairman of the meeting read a telegram from Mr. A. M. Scales, chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee of Guilford county, saying: "Guilford Democrats join in denouncing the outrageous action of those responsible for the arrest and prosecution of Democratic registrars in Winston."

The speaker of the occasion was introduced in a most fitting manner by Hon. Clement Manley, who referred to Gen. Ransom as "the first citizen of the State, the noblest Roman of them all."

When Gen. Ransom arose, erect, firm and dignified, he was given such an ovation as is seldom accorded any man by a North Carolina audience. The speech that followed was worthy of the man. Calm, eloquent and convincing, and utterly devoid of passion, the people sat as if spellbound during the hour and forty-five minutes required for its delivery.

Gen. Ransom declared this usurpation of power by the Federal authorities to be a wrong against the home and society and against immortal history, and declared that the man, the faction or party who attempts to frighten the people of North Carolina from doing their duty will fail and go down in shame. Of all the mad and unwise things ever done in an effort to frighten the people of this State, this latest was declared to be the weakest. "Your forefathers," declared the speaker, "would have died a hundred times before they would have stood this thing for a single hour."

He spoke forcefully of the conspiracy of Holton and others in a mad and desperate effort to place the power of government in the hands of the dark sons of Africa, characterizing it as a confession that their cause is lost. This race which is made to antagonize the white people of North Carolina has inhabited Africa, one of the richest continents in natural resources on the globe, for six thousand years, and during this time not one civilized improvement has been made, and no poet, orator, statesman or minister of the gospel has been produced. The dark continent stands as a monument of human weakness, depravity and savagery.

In his closing remarks Gen. Ransom spoke briefly of the constitutional amendment, showing why it was necessary for the peace and prosperity of the State and explaining why North Carolinians would never be interfered with in the enforcement of this regulation of suffrage.

NO NEWS MAY BE GOOD NEWS

Hard to Believe That the Sacred Persons of the Envoys Have Been Murdered—The Current Story of the Massacre—A Ray of Hope.

Charlotte Observer, July 18.

While definite news from Pekin is still lacking, the scant leakage of information from there is of a nature to make the blood run cold. The governor of San Tung province has informed Sheng, director of railroads and telegraphs, that the Chines army of Gen. Tung Guh Siang, with the Boxers, some time after June 25th, trained canon upon the British legation, where the foreigners, after their long and gallant defence, were making their last stand, and made huge breaches in the walls and defences. The massacre of the foreigns followed. A sensational story that the London papers print is to this effect.

The Chinese army was becoming discouarged by the slaughter in its ranks worught by stories by the troops at the legation. Then Prince Tuan, at sunset on July 6th made a night attack in three columns, beginning with a two-hours bombardment. The Chinese rushed upon the gaps in the walls but were bloodily repulsed. While about to rally to the attack, Prince Ching, who has all along been favorable to foreigners, attacked Prince Tuan, but was defeated, Ching himself being either killed or taken away and secreted by his followers. The legation defenders fought the Chinese off all night, but about daylight fresh Chinese troops arrived from Tien-Tsin, and at sunrise on the 7th the ammunition of the foreigners gave out. Then the Chinese rushed the legation, which, after a desperate hand to hand fight, was captured and all survivors were atrociously put to the sword.

For several days past the Foreign Offices of all the leading governments had taken very gloomy views of the situation at Pekin, believing the story of general massacre to be true. The news in this morning's dispatches, however contains a gleam of hope, Minister Wu. at Washington, having information of the safety of the ministers on July 9th. It is difficult to know what to believe, and the best thing to do is perhaps to consider no news good news.

If all the envoys, whose persons are always sacred, and those whom they were protecting at the capital of China have been massacred, it will be a crime unprecedented in the history of the world. It is too horrible to believe except upon certain evidence.

Bankruptcy Proceedings.

A few days ago Mr. J. H. Fulton, of Mt. Airy, filed a voluntary petition in bahkruptcy. He now files a second petition as the surviving partner in the firm of W. Fulton & Son. The liabilities are scheduled at $353,257.85, with no assets.

MR. BRYAN HOPEFUL.

He Thinks the Anti-Imperialists Will Support His Ticket Even Though They Are Opposed to the Silver Plank.

Lincoln, July 17.—Wm. J. Bryan's attention was called today to the fact that some anti-imperialists had announced that they would be opposed to him on account of the silver plank in the platform and he was asked as to whether this fact would seriously effect the anti-imperialist vote. He said:

"Several gold standard opponents of imperialism have already announced their intention to support the Democratic ticket, although the Anti-Imperialistic League has not acted officially. In such a matter each individual is governed by his own views as to the relative importance of the issue. If any opponent of imperialism refuses to support the Democratic ticket because of the silver plank, it must be because he considers the money question more important than the Philippine question; that is, he prefers a gold standard empire to a bi-metallic republic. When the test comes, I believe that those who adhere to the doctrine that governments derive their just powers not from superior forces, but from consent of the governed, will support our ticket, though they do not endorse the silver plank. A large majority of the Democrats believe that a restoration of bi-metallism would prove a blessing, but the anti-imperialists who dispute this will admit that any evils that might arise from bi-metallism could be corrected more easily than the evils which would follow from the deliberate endorsement of militariem and imperialism."

RANSOM WILL BE HERE.

The Gallant Old Man Will Address Our People at the Democratic Rally and Picnic Next Tuesday.

Gen. Matt. W. Ransom, who electrified and thrilled the white people of Forsyth county yesterday by his matchless eloquence and oratory, will speak to the people of Guilford next Tuesday. He will greet the people of this county at the Democratic rally and basket picnic to be held in Greensboro and address them on the overshadowing issue of the day. The people of Guilford county have known and loved this distinguished citizen for almost half a century and will rejoice at another opportunity of seeing and hearing him.

It is not often that the citizens of any community are so fortunate as to have with them on one day two men of such distinction and brilliance as Gen. Ransom and Locke Craige. The simple announcement that they are to be in Greensboro next Tuesday will draw a great crowd of people.

Every white man, woman and child in Greensboro and Guilford county is invited to be present. The exercises will take place in a large grove, and everything will be done for the comfort and convenience of the crowd. An abundance of ice water will be provided and the Gate City Band will render inspiring music.

Death at Guilford College.

Dr. D. A. Roberson died of Bright's disease at his home at Guilford College last night. He had been suffering for a year or more.

Dr. Roberson was regarded as one of the best men in the county. He was a most useful citizen and will be sadly missed from the community. He was about 50 years old and leaves a wife and three children.

Funeral services will be held at his late home tomorrow.

Governor-General Wood, of Cuba, has arrived in Washington and will consult with the President and the War Department officials relative to the constitutional convention soon to be held in Cuba.

SIMMONS TO M'KINLEY

EXPOSES FEDERAL INTERFERENCE

A Severe But Truthful Arraignment of the Course Pursued by Federal Office Holders in the State, the Culpable Behavior of the Government's Agents in Intimidating and Browbeating the People—The President is Made Aware of the Action of His People Down Here.

Yesterday Hon. F. M. Simmons addressed the following letter to President McKinley:

Raleigh, N. C., July 16, 1900.

Honorab'e William McKinley, the President, Executive Mansion, Washington City, D. C.

Sir: The people of this State will hold a general State election on the second day of August of this year, for the purpose of electing county and State officers and to take the sense of the people upon a proposition to amend the Constitu'ion of the State. No Federal officer will be elected or voted for at this election; and before the National election in November, under the State election law, the registration books will be open for five days to give every elector not already registered an opportunity to have his name placed upon the registration books.

In the consideration and determination of these purely local questions, I respectfully submit that our people are entitled to exemption from meddlesome interference on the part of Federal office-holders, whether acting officially under color of their office, or individually by using the opportunities given them to unduly influence those with whom they may have official relations, or by parading the authority with which they are invested in a manner intended and calculated to overawe and intimidate the electors of the State in the exercise of their free will at the ballot-box or the election officers of the State in the discharge of their official duties.

Both as a citizen of this State and as the chosen representative of a political party numbering 178,000 voters, I feel warranted by the conditions now existing in the State in making the charge that your appointees located in this State are now daily, and since the inception of the political campaign now in progress, have been flagrantly and openly, without the slightest attempt at disguise or concealment, using their official positions—the individual influence which they give—the opportunities which they afford—and the power with which they invest them, not only to control the conventions and the voters of the political party to which they belong, but to unduly influence voters of the opposition party—to coerce and intimidate the individual citizen in the exercise of his political rights, and to browbeat and intimidate the election officers of the State in the discharge of their duties, to the great scandal of your administration and in defiance of the letter as well as the spirit and principles of the Constitution and the so-called Civil Service Laws of Congress, to the maintenance of which your administration is pledged in the most solemn manner.

In making these charges, I but give expression to the righteous protest of the people of this State against this open infraction of the highest political rights guaranteed to them by the compact between them and the Federal Government, namely: the right of self-government, unhampered by Federal interference.

So far has this thing of interference by Federal office-holders gone in this State this year that if we were not engaged in the discussion and attempted settlement of a question which vitally affects our civilization, the paramount issue in this State today would be whether we were to have government by the people or government by the Federal office-holders.

I beg most respectfully to give you a brief outline and summary of some of the facts upon which I base these charges and statements:

The Republican campaign in North Carolina opened with the meeting in this city on the 18th day of May, 1900, of the Republican State Convention. This convention was largely a convention of Federal office-holders. It was composed of two hundred and forty delegates. A leading Republican of this city openly stated a few days subsequent to its adjournment that more than half these delegates held Federal offices and that they completely dominated its deliberations. A leading newspaper of this city published dur- the session of this convention the names of nearly one hundred of these delegates, giving the Federal office held by each. I send you herewith the names of some of those who were either delegates or present participating and directing its deliberations. Among them are numerous postmasters, deputy collectors, deputy marshals, store-keepers and gaugers, collection and custom deputies, census enumerators, departmental officials, the two Collectors of Internal Revenue for the eastern and western districts, the district attorneys for these two districts, etc.

This convention appointed delgates to the National Republican convention at Philadelphia. I have not a list of these delegates, but the delegation was composed largely of those holding the chief Federal positions in the State; among them Collectors of Internal Revenue Duncan and Harkins, and Postmaster Bailey, of this city.

The Chairman of the State Executive Committee of the Republican party is the Hon. A. E Holton, United States District Attorney for the Western District of this State, and on this committee are many of the leading Federal office-holders of the State.

It is notorious in this State that Federal-office holders not only controlled the State convention of the Republican party this year, but that they have been the dominating element in nearly all District and county conventions of their party throughout the State. They dictate the nominations, not only of State officials, Congressmen and electors, but of county officers as well.

The two Collectors of Internal Revenue for this State, by reason of the large number of officers under them, are the recognized managers and dominating spirits in nearly all the conventions of their party within their respective divisions They frequently attend in person the district conventions within their territory, and through their influence and that of their subordinates, effect nominations. The Hon. Thomas Settle, of Asheville, ex-member of Congress, and the Hon. Isaac M. Meekins, of Elizabeth City, who have been victimized by the machinations of these office-holders, can furnish you with confirmatory evidence of these statements.

Not only are Republican conventions controlled by this element, but the conventions of their political allies, the Populists, are likewise so controlled. In the late State convention of the Populist party many of the leading and most prominent and influential figures were men holding positions to which you had appointed them. While there were not as many delegates holding Federal offices in this convention as in the Republican convention, they were equally as potential in shaping its policy, and it is a matter of general knowledge in this State that it is this office-holding contingent in the Populist party which has forced upon it the unnatural compact that today makes it to all intents and purposes a part of the Republican party.

In every section of the State deputy collectors, deputy marshals, deputy-collectors of customs, store-keepers and guagers and clerks in these several departments of the service are conspicuous for their activity in local politics. Their offensive partisanship is the subject of general remark and universal scandal. Wherever they go in the discharge of their duties they distribute partisan literature and agitate in favor of the candidates and policies of their party. They attend public speakings, sometimes traveling long distances to do so, often going out of their divisions. It is openly charged that in many instances persons engaged in the sale and manufacture of liquor are shown leniency or treated with harshness by these subordinates, for partisan reasons. Recently the Hon. Judge of the Eastern District of North Carolina in sentencing two negro postmasters, appointed during your administration, for defalcation in office, took occasion to animadvert upon the seeming effort of certain Federal officials to secure leniency for these offenders. Since the beginning of this campaign an attorney in open court in his address to the jury that there was an understanding between certain illicit distillers and the revenue officials, to screen the former on account of their politics, and when the District Attorney demanded that he give the names of places and persons he gave both without the slightest hesitation.

It is charged and not denied that in many sections of the State fourth class postmasters have bsen extremely and offensively active in politics, discussing partisan questions in and from their offices and distributing partisan literature.

A census enmeration has just been completed in this State. All of these enumerators were either Republicans or Fusion Populists. I have received hundreds of complaints of the offensive and political activity of these officers while engaged in the discharge of their duties, not only in the distribution of partisan literature by them as they went about from house to house in the discharge of their duties, but infrequently injecting into the inquiries as to the political views and purposes of the citizen, with reference to the polltical questions now pending in this State, and in attempting to persuade, in behalf of their party, those whose political views they thought they might influence.

It is also currently rumored and understood that the entire Federal office-holding body in this State, in utter disregard of the civil service regulations, have been assessed for Republican and fusion campaign purposes. Of course, I do not pretend to know for what purpose this money has been spent; but the enclosed affidavit of W. Roy Somerville will show how part of this fund has probably been invested. I send you this affidavit, because it establishes the charges of offensive partnership which I have herein before preferred against the Collector of Internal Revenue and District Attorney of the Western District, and because it shows, if the statements of Mr. Somerville are true, a transaction not only partisan in its character, but, to say the least, of questionable morals. Your attention is called to the fact that the affidavii shows that they bought no interest in the property of the paper, but only bought the opinion and conscience of its editor.

Recently this State has been flooded with circulars threatening the arrest of State election officers under warrants to be issued by United States Commissioners, with the approval of the Republican chairman as District Attorney of the Western District, and of the Disttict Attorney of the Eastern District. I herewith enclose you one of these circulars. Strenuous efforts have been made by the Republican State Chairmain, who is also, as I stated before District Attorney, to frighten these election officers into construing the enforcing our State registration laws in accordance with his views of their meaning, and in the interest of the party he represents. To accomplish this result the fact that the chairman of the Republican party is also United States Dietrict Attorney he could and would invoke the authority of the United States government to carry out the threats made by him as chairman. Only a few days ago two of these registrars were arrested by United States marshals under warrants sworn out in the home town of the Western District by the latter. When these registrars were brought to trial, although both of these officers were at home during the whole time of the trial, neither of them appeared to represent the government; and although the district attorney was in the court room during the whole trial he was not present as prosecutor for the government, but as the representative of the Republican party, while the government was represented by private counsel, who during the trial spoke of themselves as representing the Republican party. I have understood that private counsel could only appear in government prosecutions with express consent of the Department. It may be that the Department had in this case given such consent; if so, as the government's attorneys were present and not otherwise engaged, there would seem to have been no reason for the employment of private counsel by the government, except that one of its prosecuting attorneys was chairman of a political organization, interested in the prosecution for political purposes, while the other was a candidate for Congress, and in that way interested in the result. The complication would seem to justify the Civil Service regulation against a government official holding the position of manager of a political organization.

Under this statement of facts I submit, I am justified in calling your attention to the apparently organized interference and the offensive activity of your appointees in this State in our local politics and to their attempt to use their official position to influence the results of the campaign now in progress in this State, and in the interest of the party with which they are affiliated.

I am, yours respectfully,
F. M. SIMMONS,
Chairman State Executive Committee of the Democratic Party in North Carolina.

PORTO RICO COURTSHIP.

It Is Carried on Under the Greatest Difficulties.

(San Juan Correspondence).

The constant surveillance maintained over the girls of the household and their continued subjection to parental authority, even after reaching years of maturity, is a successful barrier to anything sensational in contracting a life partnership in Porto Rico. No association is tolerated that may lead to a mesalliance, and few opportunities are afforded to create an attachment without the full knowledge and consent of the heads of the family. The only occasions upon which this may happen are the larger social gatherings, such as Mardi Gras balls and dances at the Casinos Espanol, which occur several times a year.

Young women are always surrounded with a suitable guard of chaperons by day and night. After reaching a place of social rendezvous the young folk are allowed some liberty to promenade, dance and chat together while those charged with guardianship sit near and take note of the proprieties. The attention of an inamorato to the object of his devotions must not be too ardent nor too continuous; he must not dance with her more than twice, nor hover near long enough to excite comment, which is prone to be prompt and free.

Under these conditions the susceptible young American who succumbs to the witching glance of a sweet, soft eyed senorita finds the paths of love anything but flower strewn. It requires heroic walls of bristling duennas and human walls of bristling duennas and scowling matrons that guard the approaches to her shy young heart.

After an engagement is announced the conditions are changed. Henceforth they can dance only with each other. For centuries it has been decreed to be a flagrant breach of propriety for an affianced or married woman to step through the mazes of the dance with any other than her fiance or husband. However, the chaperonage continues until marriage. Courtship must be conducted under the parental eye, members of the household remaining in the room during the visits of men, and rarely can the sweet, loving nothings be breathed without reaching other ears than those for which they are intended. Sometimes the Argus watchfulness is relaxed for a few moments, which are improved to the utmost, it can be imagined, but are liable to be broken into unexpectedly and frequently by the scrupulous and anxiously responsible parent or matron in charge.

In the preparation for marriage the bridegroom is expected to provide a home according to his means, more or less completely equipped with household linen and all necessities for housekeeping. This in virtue of the sentiment that the bride must bring to him nothing but herself and her trousseau. In this country of fine needlewomen this trousseau is something remarkable in variety and execution, often of such daintiness that many American brides might envy them.

Porto Rican brides do not waste much time or money upon many street gowns or those for public display. It is to please the eye of her husband alone that all the arts of construction are expended in house gowns, lingerie and negligees. A popular model is a cambric princess, the front a mass of lace and drawn work round neck, and gossamer tight fitting or flowing angel sleeves. A number of these enter into the outfit, each a marvel of exquisite work, according to the purse or deftness of fingers of the bride.

A fashionable time for the marriage ceremony is from midnight up to two o'clock in the morning. The bridegroom, with his immediate relatives and friends, proceeds to the home of the bride, and from there a wedding procession is formed to the church. Carriages are rarely used, the party, if living in town, making the short journey on foot, the bride walking with her godfather, the bridegroom with his godfather. The ceremony over, they return to the bride's home, whereupon she lifts the veil from her head and throws it over that of her nearest girl friend, who cuts it into bits and distributes it among the unmarried guests at the ceremony.

The bride then strips to pieces the orange blossoms of her crown, and also those which deck her gown more or less elaborately, according to the number of her guests, and a spray is presented to each. The fun then grows lively over counting the blossoms, those full blown signifying years, the half blown months and the buds days which will intervene before the recipient's marriage.

The bride then retires to make a change in another special feature of her array, the bridal garters, which are elegant affairs, ornamented with white satin rosettes and orange blossoms and suspended from the waist by strands upon strands of white satin ribbon. Each garter is enclosed in a pretty box and presented to her most intimate girl friend. The strands of ribbon are cut into pieces and distributed among the other guests. Then, simply attired in the wedding gown, sometimes even this is laid aside for another, and the festivities take the form of those usual to such occasions.

Refreshments are served, never omitting chocolate, which from time immemorial has been the nuptial beverage, so generally recognized that when a friend wishes to ask the date of a marriage the question takes the form of "When will chocolate be served?"

After several hours of gayety the bridegroom takes his bride to their new home, and they begin a life of true domesticity. They continue to be seen occasionally in society, but generally chaperoning some young friends, or chatting with their contemporaries, or quietly and contentedly moving through the dance, always, invariably, with each other.

A PROPOSITION.

There has been much said about the discussion of the dispensary question hurting the Democratic ticket in Guilford. There is a concerted effort to blame the dispensary advocates for not quietly submitting to the re-opening of saloons in Greenshoro rather than to have a discussion of this question. The friends of the dispensary did all in their power to keep this matter out of the politics of the county, and the other side persistently fought to put it there. They succeeded in getting it before the convention, but even then that body shaped the matter so that there need be no trouble if all Democrats, both dispensary and anti-dispensary. are acting in good faith and are willing to abide by the decision of the vote of next month. Already the crawfish brigade is beginning to whine that the "ticket is going to be hurt;" it is not going to be hurt by the votes of dispensary people. There is but one way it can be hurt, and that is by anti-dispensary Democrats voting for Starbuck, Douglas and Wood. We do not charge that they will do this. But what do they mean now when they see that the dispensary is going to win, if they don't mean this? There are as good Democrats as can be found anywhere who are conscientiously opposed the dispensary and will vote against it. Do these Democrats know what the Anti-Dispensary leaders are saying? Do they know that the Republicans are boasting that they expect to carry their ticket by a trade?

The Telegram knows that not a single dispensary Democrat will fail to vote for and work for the Democratic ticket no matter how the dispensary question goes. We defy any one to show the contrary.

Can the Anti-Dispensary League guarantee that it will not divert or try to divert a single Democratic vote from the ticket?

Come to the scratch. Don't crawfish. We have heard enough of this talk of "hurting the ticket." Who's going to hurt it.

GENERAL M. W. RANSOM.

Greensboro and Guilford county may well congratulate themselves that General Matt. W. Ransom, at the official solicitation of Chairman Scales, backed by the private requests of many gentlemen, has consented to be here next Tuesday and make a speech. This will entail considerable hardship upon him, being engaged, as he is, to speak on the preceeding day at Goldsboro. Though seventy-six years of age, his step is still elastic when his people call. The immense crowd that will gather here next week to see and hear him will be a sufficient attestation that the people still love him and desire to hear his magic voice again. To see his stately form upon the rostrum and to hear again his matchless, charming words will indeed be a reminder of the old days before the dark nightfall from which we are just now emerging.

The office no longer seeks the man. In fact it has to move along pretty fast to keep out of his reach.

HIGH POINT IN DANVILLE.

The People Are Made to Feel at Home by the Good People of the Virginia City.

Correspondence of the Telegram.

High Point, July 18

Through the courtesy of Prof Geo. H. Crowell your correspondent is enabled to get the news from the excursion:

Yesterday was the annual picnic of the children of the different Sunday schools of High Point in Danville. The day dawned bright and the breeze was pleasant, which made the day an ideal one for picnicing. The children arose with the sun, made for the depot, and long ere the time arrived to leave for Danville quite an army of boys and girls, men and women, had assembled.

At 8:30 the conductor cried "All aboard," and the train with its precious cargo of 800 souls was en route to Danville. Mirth and merriment were depicted in every countenance.

After a very pleasant run of two hours the train pulled into the city at the Southern's magnificent depot. Seven electric cars at once began to convey the children through the beautiful city of the Dan to Reservoir Park, which is one of the most beautiful parks on the Southern railroad and is the pride of Danville and her people.

Here the picnicers were met at the gate and under the pavilion by a reception committee of about a hundred men; the mayor, Dr. Thames, chairman, representing the churches and Sunday schools, the superintendents and the leading men of the city. The mayor, in a few well chosen words, welcomed High Point to Danville and its unbounded hospitality. Other speeches of welcome were made, after which Dr. J. J. Cox, mayor of High Point, and Dr. W. G. Bradshaw responded right nobly, assuring Danville's people that their generosity was greatly appreciated.

Their generosity? It was more than any one had ever dreamed. Servants stood at the well and pumped out to us in abundance the purest and best water that flows from Virginia's hills, barrels and buckets of ice water were at different places in the park for those who preferred it. Quantities of lemonade were measured out to the children without price. Tables were arranged for dinner, tomatoes were served and a thousand of other courtesies, both in the park and in the city, were breathed upon us as freely as the air that flowed through the treetops.

Their generosity appreciated! It was evident. It was written in behavior of the day. No one doubts it who saw the manly dignity and deportment of the picnicers. Danville doubts not that the children of High Point had pleasant dreams last night of yesterday's cordial greetings and entertainment, and that fond recollections of their annual picnic of 1900, at Danville, will linger in their memories many a summer.

It is conceded by all who attended, that it was the most successful and enjoyable of any annual picnic yet given by the Sunday schools of High Point to the children.

Mr. W. P. Pickett, manger, and the superintendents of the various Sunday schools are to be congratulated for their wise management and efficient service

Rev. H. L. Atkins Prefers Charges.

Salisbury Truth-Index.

The charges of Rev. H. L. Atkins, pastor of the First Methodist church, from his pulpit last Sunday, is being probed to the bottom by the aldermen.

A special meeting of the board of aldermen was called for yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock to investigate Rev. Atkins' charge, which was to the effect that a certain saloon in Salisbury sold liquor on Sunday.

The aldermen appointed a committee consisting of Mayor Lord and Capt. W. H. Overman to meet this morning with Rev. Atkins and ask for his proof of the charge.

Rev. Atkins stood ready to prove his allegations and it was decided that he should prefer the charge.

He has accordingly entered a charge and if all the witnesses can be secured by that time the trial of the offending saloon keeper will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

At the request of Mayor Lord the name of the saloon in question is withheld until the trial is held.

It is safe to say that when the hearing is held there will be some interesting testimony offered.

THE EARLIEST CANDY.

Some Statistics About Sweets That Will Be Interesting

The most popular and the most ancient of bon-bons are sugar plums, pastilles and burnt almonds, but how many persons know their history? Sugar plums date back from Roman times, for the Romans were the first to think of covering almonds with layers of sugar. The inventor was a certain Julius Dragatus, a noted confectioner, who belonged to the illustrious patrician family of Fabius. He made this great discovery, which has wrought so much damage to our teeth for 20 centuries, in the year 177 B. C., These bon-bons, called dragati, after heir inventor (dragees in French), remained the exclusive privilege of the family of Fabius. But at the birth or marriage of one of that family a great distribution of dragati took place, as a sign of rejoicing. The custom is still observed by many of the nobility of Europe. The pastille is of far later origin, having been invented and introduced into France by an Italian confectioner, the Florentine John Pastilla, a protege of the Medicis. When Maria de Medici married Henry IV. of France Pastilla accompanied his sovereign to the French Court, where his bon-bons had a tremenduous vogue. Everybody wanted the Florentine's pastilles, and, strange to say, they were perfection from the very beginning. He made them with all kinds of flavors—chocolate, coffee, rose, violet, mint, wine, strawberry, raspberry, vanilla, heliotrope, carnation. Burnt almonds are purely of French origin, owing their inception to the gluttony of a certain French merchant. One day Marshal Duplessis-Pralin, an old gourmet, sent for Lassagne, who had already invented many a toothsome dainty, and was a man of resources. He searched, he reflected, he combined, until finally he conceived a delicious bon-bon, which he baptized gloriously with the name of his master, Praline, the French for burnt almonds. This is the history of the invention of bon-bons, for all others are merely combinations or developments of these three—the sugar plum, the pastills and the burnt almond.

LIFE SAVED BY A GAME.

HIDE AND SEEK THAT WAS PLAYED IN EARNEST.

It Was Played With Some Children But It Saved a Man's Life—A True Story Simply Told to Interest the Little Folk.

Years and years ago, in the time of Queen Mary of England, there stood in the County of Surrey a quaint ivy covered manor house, known to the region about as Cuthberton Hall. The owner of this fine place at the time of which I speak was Sir John Cuthberton. He had a dear little daughter of eight and a noisy, strapping boy about a year older. Those were troublesome times, as all who have read English history must know. Queen Mary—Bloody Mary, as she is often called—was a cruel woman. She put to death a great many people who would not think as she did on religious matters and go to the particular church she approved of.

Luckily for Sir John and his good wife, Lady Jane, they did nothing to raise the ire of their Queen.

But Sir John had a brother, an adventurous spirit, who was more often roaming abroad than at home in Merrie England. He had been brought up in Holland and had early imbibed the religious faith and ideas of the Dutch reformers. He knew very well that to acknowledge publicly that he was a reformer would be to have himself pronounced a heretic, and that meant death at the stake.

Still, not even the fear of death could change his religious beliefs, and he was accustomed to worship? ing in secret with those of a similar faith.

One afternoon Sir John and his wife went by coach to London town to spend a few days leaving their two children in charge of a faithful nurse.

That same afternoon, about dusk, the two were having a merry romp on the lawn in front of the manor with a couple of their pet dogs, when a man came dashing up the long drive that led to the house.

The dogs growled and started up, and then began to yelp and fawn on the man in evident delight.

"Oh, Uncle Dick!" cried the children, as the man came nearer. But he paid no attention to their cry of welcome, and went racing on into the house. The children, not knowing what to make of the behavior of their usually playful uncle, ran in after him. They found him just inside the entrance door, prone on the floor, exhausted.

He was white to the lips and his dress much disordered.

"Oh, Uncle Dick!" cried the children again. "What has happened? What's the matter?"

"Nothing, dears," he answered feebly. "I was just running a race with some men I met!"

"Did you beat them?" asked the girl.

"Yes," replied her uncle, with a ghastly smile. "But I expect they will catch up with me before long." He dared not tell these two young innocents that he was being hunted down by Queen Mary's men, and that if caught he would be put to death.

Presently the man staggered to his feet.

"Let's have a game of hide and seek!" he said, with a poor effort to seem jovial.

"Hurrah! What fun!" cried the children, clapping their hands in glee.

"Who will hide" asked the boy.

"All three of us?" replied their uncle.

"But who will seek us out?" asked the girl.

"Ah! Some of Her Gracious Majesty's soldiers will shortly rap at this very door to ask for me, and perhaps for you. And don't you think it would be a rare good joke on them if they could not find any of us?" suggested Uncle Dick. The children thought it the greatest sport ever heard of.

"Good!" cried the man. "We will fool them nicely. Now, you two run out the back way with the dogs and get into the kennel with them and lie still. The soldiers will never think to find you there. As for me, I am going inside the suit of armor that your great-grandfather wore, and which stands in the banquet hall. Only you will have to help me into it first."

It was a difficult matter to climb into that suit of armor, large as it was, but finally the hunted man got in somehow, and the visor of the helmet was pulled down. That a man was inside no man would have known to look at it. Half an hour later a dozen rough-looking fellows with lances entered the hall and ransacked it from top to bottom. They sounded the walls, explored the secret closets and upset things generally. But no signs of their quarry could they discover, and the frightened servants could give them no aid.

At last the band departed, and that same night Uncle Dick kissed his young relatives good-by and stole out in the darkness and across the country till he came to the coast. A sailing boat took him to the continent, and not till Elizabeth came to the throne did he dare tread English soil again.

Years later Sir John's children came to know that game of hide and seek was with Uncle Dick a matter of life and death.

Their Winter Homes.

The swallows all spend the winter in Central America and the south part of Mexico. They appear in the Southern States as early as the middle of February, but seldom get as far north as New England until the month of May. The robins winter in the Southern States and in Northern Mexico. They are to be seen in flocks the winter through in the Gulf States, and are often killed in great numbers there, as they are in very good condition in the winter season. The migratory instinct is not so strong in this bird as in some others, and as far North as Ohio it often remains in sheltered places all winter. Its attachment to familiar spots is very strong.

RAILROADS ASSESSED AT OLD RATE.

Judge Simonton Issues Another Injunction—The Drought Serious.

Special Correspondence of the Telegram.

Raleigh, July 18.—Chairman Simmons' open letter to President McKinley will attract a great deal of attention. It is incisive. It sticks a knife into Chairman Holton and the collectors of revenue and the underlings who work like machines.

Weather Observer Von Herrmann says "The drought situation is very serious. It is especially hard on corn and tobacco and it is beginning to injure cotton. The dryness of the air is remarkable. Last night there was only 38 per cent. of moisture." There has been almost no dew for many nights.

There are many daring thieves at work. One of them went into the stable here of conductor Eastman, of the Seaboard Air Line railway, and took his horse, harness and buggy. This occurred about one o'clock Monday night. Eastman heard the noise but was sick in bed.

The Roman Catholics will hold a great fair here in aid of their orphanange, which is in the suburbs of Raleigh.

Two or three years ago half a dozen roots of the Egyptian lotus were planted in a marsh here. The marsh is in a wild place, and the mud is deep and black. Now there are acres of the lotus flowers. The stalks are eight or nine feet high and not even in the tropics can one see a more tropical vegetation. A florist here tells me he never saw anything approach it. The flowers are as large as a dinner plate, and the leaves two or three feet in diameter. The seed are in immense pods and are excellent eating.

The Western Union Telegraph Company's assessment by the corporation commission this year was, as will be remembered, $1,000,000. Yesterday evening an injunction signed by Judge Simonton was served on the commission, directing the latter to assess the property at the 1898 rate, that is $600,000, until the Federal Court has passed upon the case, which was first heard before Judge Simonton in August of last year, and in which Standing Master Shepherd is now taking testimony.

Today the great railways, the Southern, the Atlantic Coast Line and the Seaboard Air Line, filed exceptions against the increase of $10,000,000 in the assessment of their property, and nothiug can be done in this matter of the increase until Judge Simonton passes upon it, as the case is on the same footing as that of the Western Union.

Oscar Spears and Mr. McNinch, of Charlotte, were to speak at the same place in Person county McNinch challenged Spears to a joint debate. The latter refused. McNinch then called on all friends of white supremacy to follow him to a grove nearby. All save 4 of the white men followed. The four remained to hear Spears.

For Foolhardy Wheelmen.

The reckless bicycle coaster is perennial and omnipresent. He seems to learn slowly, despite the warning reports of those who have either been killed or maimed for life by their recklessness. In some communities in Europe they have devised a netting which the coaster unaware of a turn in the road, must run into, willy nilly. It is called the wire net of Raminago, and has been wonderfully efficient in catching poor mortals who would otherwise have coasted into eternity. Of course it brings the wheelman up by a rather rude shock, but it saves his life, and so long as bicyclists will coast down unfamiliar and unknown hills, there seems to be a need of some such thing in this country, especially in mountainous regions.

"Your honor," said the learned counsel in concluding his address, "we will now rest."

"So will the Court," replied the Judge with a sigh of relief.

MADE AND LOST MILLIONS

And Lucky Baldwin Is Still Full of Energy.

IS GOING TO CAPE NOME

Many a Time He Has Been Possessed of a Fortune and Had Nothing Better to Eat Than Flapjacks—Not Easily Discouraged.

"I have made and lost more millions than any other American, but the first ship that sails for Cape Nome will cary me as a passenger," writes 'Lucky' (E. J.) Baldwin in the New York Evening World. "People tell me I am too old to bear the hardships of a new mining country, but I am not.

"I am going to Cape Nome, for I think there is plenty of money to be made there, but principally to show people that 'Lucky' Baldwin's luck is still with him. I shall open a store, saloon, dance hall or theatre—the one thing that the place wants and will pay highest for.

"From the day I landed in San Francisco in the winter of 1853 I began to work in the Pacific Temperantce House, which was the best paying house in town. I then sold out, making $7,000 on the deal.

"The next thing I went into was the brick-making business. I saw that in a very short time the government would need bricks for Fort Point and Fort Alcatraz. I went into partnership with a man who had a small brick yard, but we did not agree, and dissolved partnership and went into business for myself. My yard couldn't turn out the bricks fast enough to supply the demand for them.

"I sold the brick yard and put the money in real estate. I bought some property and turned it into a livery stable, which I ran for some months, and then sold out at a big profit.

"After I sold out the livery stable I started on a trip around the world with a couple of Englishmen and two Scotchmen. It was on this trip that I got my 'lucky' ring in Japan. I also brought back with me a company of Japanese and Chinese actors. I played with them in every mining camp in California, making gold dust by the sackful out of them. Then I took the company east, finaly playing them in New York at the Academy of Music for eight week to the biggest business that theatre had ever had. I sold out to Gilbert, of Gilbert and Sullivan fame, and he took the company abroad, where it played to almost every crowned head of Europe.

"In 1859 I started for the mines in Nevada. I had plenty of money, but I wanted some mining excitement. Many's the time I've had a million dollars and nothing to eat but a flapjack. I have been out in the mountains where I had to get up and shake a foot of snow off my blankets, make some flapjacks and cut a twig off a tree for a fork. If men who are willing to endure such hardships strike it rich they are dubbed 'lucky' instead of 'plucky.'

"I don't believe in advising others, although I have helped some people who were not afraid to take chances to make a fortune. The man who deals in stocks has got to have confidence and nerve. I've lost a million dollars and not lost a wink of sleep over it. And I've made five times as much without losing my head. As to all my dealings in stocks, I can say that if I had to do it over again, knowing what was ahead, I could not improve on my stock investments.

"After the big Ophir deal I wanted something to invest my money in that I thought would be safer than banks. I bought a ranch in southern California, and called it Santa Anita, and if their is a fair land on earth it's right there. I have invested in all about $2,000,000 in southern California. Some of the finest horses in the state were raised on my ranch down there. Next to mining I like to raise horses and race them.

"The Ophir deal was my big opportunity in the past. On the day that the directors met to freeze me out I knew that one member would be absent, but heard that the president intended voting both as president and member, which would give the faction three votes against my two. I went to my lawyer, Reuben H. Lloyd, and told him to get out an injunction.

There were twenty minutes lacking in which to get out that injunction, but I said go ahead anyway. Then I went to the meeting, broke up the furniture, knocked one man under the table, covered another with a pistol and kept things lively until Lloyd got there with the injunction. It was fighting, not luck, that saved me.

"I wouldn't give an outline of my life without mentioning that I've been in court more times than most men—sometimes as plaintiff, sometimes as defendant. I really don't know how many lawsuits I have been mixed up in, but my lawyer says enough to make me a pretty good lawyer. I work on my case as much as my lawyer himself and I'm pretty well up in law, even if I haven't a sheepskin entitling me to practice.

"It is said that I trusted so much in my luck that I never insured any of my property. It wasn't that I had faith in my luck, but it is a fact that I never cared to insure my property. I kept an insurance account, and up to the time of the hotel fire I was $500,000 ahead. When I built the Baldwin hotel I first leased the ground on which it stood and afterward bought it. The hotel cost, when it was finished $2,000,000, and $200,000 was afterward put in it for improvements. The hotel paid an interest of $150,000 a year, so it wasn't a bad investment.

"The house stood for one year without an insurance ,and only the year before it was burned did I take out a policy for $50,000. I had been warned that a certain party threatened to burn my hotel, and that was the reason I insured it. I have never had another piece of property insured.

"Despite my years I am still strong and full of energy, willing to take big chances and ready to work. That is all the luck there is in it, and, therefore, I believe I will be as lucky in the future as I have been in the past. Every man makes his own luck."

IN SERIOUS VEIN.

All hogs have not bristles—many sport excellent suits of silk, cotton or wool.

The flame of love lights up good and burns up evil.

Our poor relations—those lacking truth, beauty and love.

Energy cannot be lost—it is hard, however, to say sometimes just where it is spending its vacation.

Courage we must have—if not active to achieve, then passive to endure.

The mean are not half so mean as they would like to be, nor the generous half so generous.

We can acquire the reputation of generosity with a penny or two, but not the character.

We arrive, after our last day's journey, with our characters, not with our reputations.

Her Chafing Dish.

When Fanchon to her chafing dish
  Repairs and lights the alcohol,
We look for miracles and wish
  That fate may let us share them all.
Though not too gluttony inclined,
  We laugh with gastronomic glee,
And each lays plans with secret mind
  To each tid-bit enough for three.

For Fanchon is a cook supreme
  Of dainties which the dish may hold;
A gracious goddess of the steam
  Whose bounties please us more than gold,
Her finnan-haddies and croquets
  Are poems of deliciousness;
Her oysters and her omelets
  Achieve the climax of success.

And yet I wonder, can it be
  That Fanchon's skill is so unique?
I know what savor all for me
  Are her bright eyes and glowing cheek.
Well, Fanchon, cater to the men
  And to the maids whom men desire,
But don't get scorched, young lady, when
  Your're playing with the dainty fire.

L. A. W. MEET.

Programme of Entertainment—The Executive Committee and Races.

Milwaukee, with characteristic energy, has already commenced work preparatory to the national meet of the League of American Wheelmen. July 10-15 are the dates decided upon, for the reason that this is one of the most delightful seasons in Wisconsin and because all of the star riders of the National Cycling Association will be available at that time.

A permanent executive committee, having in charge the meet arrangements, has been organized with Mr. A. D. Meiselbach as chairman. Mr. Meiselbach is not only one of the most prominent wheelmen of Milwaukee and Wisconsin, but of the entire country. He has been one of the leading factors for years in the trade, pastime and sport of cycling, and his acceptance of the position tendered him is good assurance that nothing will be left undone to make the Milwaukee meet one of the memorable ones. Associated with him will be F. P. Van Valkenburg, the leader of league forces in the west, and Otto Dorner, for three years chairman of the L. A. W. Highway Improvement Committee. Others who will be working for the meet including the prominent wheelmen of the state and of the Citizens' Business League, which has taken a great interest in the affair.

An outline of the probable programme of the entertainment shows: An entertainment at a local theatre for one evening. Another evening will be devoted to social receptions at various clubs throughout the city; a third will be taken up by the all-night smoker, which has become a feature of the national meet; a fourth evening will witness races on the track. In additions there will be excursions on the bay and the Milwaukee river, social gatherings at the celebrated Schlitz Palm Garden and visits to other places of public interest.

As a novelty one day will be devoted to good roads. This will be interesting, not alone to wheelmen visitors, but to farmers throughout Wisconsin and adjacent states. The programme for this day is in charge of Senator J. H. Stout, of Menominee, one of the best-known and most practical of good roads advocates in the United States. Congressman Davidson, Otto Dorner, F. F. Merrill and F. M. Harbach will also serve on this committee. The Citizens' Business League will encourage a congress of farmers and other good roads enthusiasts on that day, thus bringing into contact the two classes—wheelmen and farmers—who are most vitally interested in the road question.

A novel feature will be a one-mile straightaway multicycle race on Grand avenue, the street made famous by the "fire run" of the Milwaukee Fire Department. There will also be a schooner excursion. Not the kind that made Milwaukee famous, but an excursion in a genuine three-masted schooner upon Lake Michigan.

The National Cycling Association will furnish the races, and these will be among the most prominent features on the programme, as the national championship will practically be decided at that time.

Sir Henry M. Stanley was recently asked if he could find time to lecture in the United States on the topics suggested by the war in South Africa. He replied that his parliamentary duties would prevent his absence at this time.

Niagara power was used so long ago as 1725, when the French erected a saw mill near the site of the present factory of the Pittsburg Reduction Company. It was used for the purpose of supplying sawed lumber for Fort Niagara.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Things of Interest in Greensboro--Small Happenings.

The Presbyterian Sunday school excursion got off to Winston this morning, carrying along several hundred jolly people.

On account of the picnic and excursion to Winston, there will be no prayer meeting at the First Presbyteterian church tonight.

Don't register unless you expect to vote. A gentleman of intelligence was seen a few days ago who thought the election was in November.

The Elks will meet in Masonic Hall this evening at 8 o'clock. There are two candidates to be initiated and every Elk is requested to be present.

Solicitor Brooks is to speak in High Point tomorrow night. Those in High Point who have not heard this forceful speaker should not miss this opportunity.

The Methodist and Presbyterian Sunday schools of Danville ran an excursion to the Guilford Battle Ground today. A large number of people from the Virginia city enjoyed themselves at this historic spot.

Mayor Taylor has been appointed chairman of the committee to make all arrangements for the Democratic rally. He will at once push the arrangements and a great time is assured. The sub-committees will be appointed at once.

Register today. This is a new registration and you must register if you vote. This has been said dozens of times, and yet there will be men who will come up on election day and say they voted two years ago, or they voted in the city election, and they thought this would do.

If you registered in the city election, if you have registered 25 times, it does not count in this election, for this is a new registration. You cannot vote without being registered, and yet there will be men on election day who will come up to vote, and who will say they didn't know they had to register again.

AN ADJOURNED MEETING.

The Aldermen Arrange for the Sanitary Protection of the City—To Widen a Street.

An adjourned meeting of the Board of Aldermen was held last night. The street committee filed a report of an agreement reached with Dr. D. W. C. Benbow for the purchase of four feet of ground along his property for the purpose of widening the street. The price agreed upon was $300, which is considerably less than the same property recently sold for. The report was accepted.

A committee was appointed to district the city for the purpose of better carrying out the sanitary ordinance. Certain scavenger carts will be assigned to each district and made responsible for the sanitary condition of the same.

A petition was presented asking that Spring street be opened from the Southern Railway to West Lee street. The property owners agree to donate the land necessary to extend the street. The city engineer was authorized to make a plat of the land that will be needed.

Relief to those aching, overstrained eyes. See Drs. Moore for glasses.

We are selling out our ladies Oxford ties at cut prices and they are going off at a lively rate, but we still have a great many to dispose of and if you don't wait too long you can get a nice pair to fit you at a bargain.

I WISH TO INFORM YOU that I have moved my shoe shop to No. 206 South Davie street, between John J. Phoenix and C. A. Clapp's stores, opposite the market house, where I will do first class work using only the best stock and save you ten per cent in price. L. B. Albertson.
